Introduction

As long-standing supporters of Women in Business, we understand the challenges women might face when setting up or running businesses. And we're committed to making NatWest part of the number one banking group for enterprise by supporting UK businesses to start, scale and succeed.

Part of this commitment is to provide support to women who've faced even more barriers to starting or growing a business. Through our Women in Business programme, NatWest Group has provided tailored support and expertise for female entrepreneurs by doing the following.

- Committed to supporting 35,000 businesses across the UK through our enterprise programmes in 2023, with 50% of support going to females.
- Established a Women in Business programme, with more than 1,000 independently accredited Women in Business specialists (accredited by Chartered Banker Institute and certified by everywoman).
- Launched The Rose Review of Female Entrepreneurship in March 2019 by Alison Rose at the request of the UK Government, which examines the barriers that women in business face and what can be done to overcome them.

We have three key areas where we can offer you help and support.

Expert in Residence

In 2019, The Rose Review set out the potential for the UK economy if women started and scaled new businesses at the same rate as men. The review demonstrated that up to £250bn of new value (equivalent to one million SME businesses) could be added to the UK economy if women started and scaled new businesses at the same rate as UK men.

The Rose Review also highlighted that a key enabler of helping female entrepreneurs overcome barriers to succeed in starting, sustaining or scaling their business is to improve access to expertise in both national and local communities together.

Our Expert in Residence programme is delivered by Local Enterprise Managers (LEMs). They work collaboratively with enterprise partners across the UK, proactively spending time supporting local businesses, sharing advice, creating networks, leveraging the local ecosystem and hosting events to boost businesses and help them grow.
